SHAW

SOMEONE once said, "School is brick and school is dead." He painted a picture of a fog of knowledge: stuffy, mottled, and headache-producing. But he wasn't quite right; in fact, he almost completely missed his mark.

For any school, and this one in particular, is composed of the people who are in it—those who come to it, and those who run it. Its heartbeat is theirs; they breathe for it and put life into it. They make it what it is or is not.

. . . . and the War

So it is that group of people called Shaw high school that this book encompasses. These covers inclose one year of their collective life. These pages cover a history that will never be quite the same for them or their school. If the past has been lost or the future is unknown, this tiny part of their existence has been captured, encased in printed words and photographs, and herewith presented to them.

It is a record of a year in a school at war—in 1942-3.

IN MEMORY

Of Those Who Serve

WAR came to Shaw high much as it did to other schools and other groups of Americans. It left its mark in rising prices and food scarcities in the cafeteria; it painted rationing signs on the West Technical entrance; it thinned the ranks of senior classes.

It was greedy; and Shaw responded by feeding it a great many war stamps, several teachers, and an ever increasing number of young boys. The school became a mother again and sent long lists of its graduated sons into battle, as it had done in the last World war. Victory courses were installed to prepare more names for the lists, names belonging to bodies belonging to the students who once comprised the school.

This book is dedicated to those names and the people who own them.

by divisions

- 1-15 In this section, the reader shakes hands with the 1943 Shuttle and meets the Shaw High governing organizations.
- 16-35 The Seniors—A last look at high school friends before graduation—and separation.
- 36-51 In this division are the lingering memories of last fall's gridiron battles, the victorious hardwood warriors and they of the cinder path who along with the other gladiators spell "Shaw Sports".
- 52-63 Wherein the Athletic Council and its disciples are sovereign.
- 64-103 A presentation of all the remaining school activities—with Student Council in the spotlight.
- 103-112 The Activity Lists . . . what you achieved . . . a file of near-forgotten memories.

DR. O. J. KORB

Superintendent

AFTER serving as superintendent of South Euclid schools for two decades, Dr. Otto J. Korb came to Shaw in 1939 to fill the identical position in the East Cleveland school system.

During his four years in this office he has rapidly become a part of the tradition and daily life of this school and the surrounding community, until now he is a fixture and a symbol of an excellent educational organization.

His poise and quiet manner of speaking have brought him the respect and admiration of all his contacts, and his position of leadership in the community is an established fact. It is hoped that he may continue to be with us for many more successful years.

MR. M. C. DIETRICH

Principal

SHAW is everything to Principal M. C. Dietrich, and he is everything to Shaw. Sharing in education, activities, defeats and victories, he is beloved and admired by everyone who comes in contact with him.

In his 14 years of guiding the school, Mr. Dietrich has endeared to the students this democratic institution. A firm believer in "government of the people, by the people, and for the people," he has granted to each pupil an equal opportunity.

The excellent rating of Shaw among high schools of the state is proof of the capability and enthusiasm of its principal. Both the community and the school are continually benefiting from his ever-ready help.

In war as in peace Mr. Dietrich gives inspiration to the faculty, the parents and the student body.

Serving since 1934, MR. GEORGE N. NELSON has been elected president several times. His term expires December 31, 1945.

In 1934 Mrs. MARIEM S. MORGAN became a board member. Her term will expire December 31, 1945.

BOARD OF EDUCATION

Another past president and board veteran is Mr. BEN B. WICKHAM, re-elected president this January, whose term expires December 31, 1943.

A former president of the board and member since 1932, Mr. C. W. KIMMEL will serve until December 31, 1943.

Newest member of the board is Mr. PAUL H. McCLELLAND, who was elected in 1939. He is to serve until December 31, 1943.

THE FACULTY

MODERN education stems predominantly from those people who deliver it to the student body—the faculty and teachers. The variety of subjects they teach run from English to physics, from imaginative artwork to common sense. In addition to regular curricula, the war placed many of them in charge of special classes in aeronautics, radio, and home defense.

Their efficiency and capability, added to their own educational qualifications, were thrown into the school's first full year of war. The pace of things was increased, but many of them continued to teach more than one subject, advise extra-curricular activities, and give guidance wherever possible.

THE LIBRARY

UNDER the capable hands of Miss Mary Morrison and her competent assistants, Shaw's library stands as a smoothly functioning storehouse of information for student and teacher alike.

This year it was again the scene of action for scurrying bands of students engaged in technical library work for English under Miss Morrison's direction; and filing cards, readers' guides, and reference books became the order of the day.

During school hours it served as a study hall to Honor Society members and students with special permits from their teachers to do research work on some particular subject. After school it furnished a meeting place for various student committees, or friendly gatherings. It became a focal point of scholastic life, dealing with both pleasure and knowledge.

THREE years to come seemed a long time . . . but it wasn't long enough . . . not long enough to see our dreams complete or to make plans to complete them. We got into something we didn't ask for and now we have to help get out of it . . . but we'll always remember some of the things that gave us special memories.

Football rallies and baseball games. Bea Weiner, our valedictorian . . . Jack Shaw and all the glory that he brought our alma mam-mie in football, baseball, and basketball . . . Senior Hi-Y president, Jack Neckar . . . our Senior dance and Honor day assemblies . . . Sue Lewis and Virginia Councell, representing us on Student Council every semester . . . Harry

Campbell, Shuttle editor . . . Bob Ross, Observer editor . . . Vivian Holdt for her athletic ability . . . Bill Byrne on the swimming team . . . the oh-so-funny jokes of Bill Morison . . . Mary Lou Ramsay in the Dramatic club performances . . . our class president, Chuck Russo . . . June Hottell, first girl sports editor . . . Honor society president, Mark Spilka . . . FOOTBALL

CHARGING through their first wartime football season since 1918, Shaw's light but rugged gridmen came up with five victories, one tie, two defeats, and a second place tie with Lorain in the L. E. L. race, presenting Marty Loftus with success in his new role as head coach.

With only three returning lettermen as his nucleus, Coach Loftus, who had previously served here six years as line coach, formed an aggressive and determined squad that bowed only to championship Collinwood and Lakewood elevens. East, Shaker, Culver, Elyria, and Heights failed to score against them, but Lorain's Steelers gained a memorable 12-12 deadlock.

ALMA MATER

Sing with praise to old Shaw High School,
Glorify her name.
In the hall of school day victories
Shaw has won her fame;
While at war with grim Defeat
She learned to play the game.
Sing with praise to old Shaw High School,
Glorify her name.
Sing of love for dear Shaw High School,
Alma Mater fair;
Sharing sadness, offering gladness,
Tendering ev'ry care.
Teachers, students, fathers, mothers,
All in tribute share;
Sing of love for dear Shaw High School,
Alma Mater fair.

THOSE men behind the men behind the football team—the managers, you guessed it—put in a season of faithful dirty work on and off the gridiron. They took care of the odds and ends, leftovers, and unwanted but necessary jobs lying behind the sparkle of football, and put in a performance as commendable as that of their team.

FIGHT SONG

Black and Red, forge ahead
In the battles they have led,
When our Shaw boys come rolling along.
Back them up with a shout
That ten thousand throats give out,
When the Shaw boys come rolling along.
Chorus—
Then it's heigh, heigh, hee, on to victory,
Shout out their praises loud and strong.
RAH! RAH!
They will fight, fight, fight,
With courage and with might,
See our Shaw boys come rolling along.
KEEP THEM ROLLING!
See our Shaw boys come rolling along.
Get that kick, stop that pass,
Show them they're not in our class,
Make the football come rolling along.
SHAW HIGH!
Make that football come rolling along.

SONS OF MERCURY.....

SUCCESSFUL in their regular season dual meets but mediocre in the district and Lake Erie league contests, Shaw High's track team won four and tied one out of six dual meets.

Consistently led by Wayne Houston, Jim Reid, and Bob Krause, the Cardinals whipped Cleveland Heights, Collinwood, Euclid Central, and University School but lost to the powerful Western Reserve Academy team and tied Shaker. Houston showed his heels to most of his opponents in the hurdles, while Reid majored in the dashes and Krause set a new record in the shot put, tossing the pellet 47 feet, 1 ³/₄ inches.

Supporting these three were Julius Gokorsch in the high jump; Howie Wolfgram, pole vault; and Joe Hartman and Curtis Spencer in the long distance races. E. C. Offinger was again mentor of the team.

HARDWOOD WARRIORS

WITH determination and vigor, with plenty of fight and a share of good luck, Shaw's swift moving basketball team overcame an initial slump to build themselves into one of the best teams in the history of that sport in this school. Although they could only gain third place in Lake Erie league standings, they went on to win the Class A district championship at Euclid Shore's auditorium gymnasium, and then they reached the sectional playoffs at Kent, Ohio, where they were eliminated by Canton Lehman.

Their final record shows 12 wins as against six defeats; they scored 668 points to their opponents' 525; they beat Lakewood and Heights, the two teams ahead of them in league play.

Jack Shaw, at center, scored a seasonal total of 277 points to lead the entire city. The defense was accentuated by the plays of guards Dave Baxter, Bert Doyle, and Willie Hart. Jack Neckar and Herb Pekarek, forwards, ranked next to Shaw in point gathering; and together with Chuck Russo, were the only other letter winners.

. . . mermen of the Shaw natatorium

SPLASHING their way to victory in five of eight dual meets, Shaw's mermen put success into a hazardous season and showed great promise for next year as well.

Chief power of the team came from six underclassmen, led by Jack Balfourd, breast-stroke specialist. Balfourd, beaten only once during the regular season, captured first place in the district meet and third in the state meet.

Tom Izant and Pat Smith were masters of the 100- and 200-yard free-style events, while Ralph Barton churned through in the backstroke. Louis Lehman and Dave Richie did most of the diving.

After the regular season, the Black and Red finished second in the district meet, rounding out their season by winning a third in the breast-stroke and a second in the medley relay to rank fifth in the state meet at Columbus.

RACKET WIELDERS

. . . they of the clay courts

WITH only one letterman returning, the Black and Red tennis racketeers rang up two victories out of five Lake Erie league battles.

But the 1942 season was successful to the degree that it was the first since 1940 that the team took more than one victory. Elyria fell for the third year in a row, and Shaker Heights was also beaten; but Heights, Lakewood, and Lorain kept up their winning ways with the Shaw team.

After the regular season was completed, an open contest was held to decide the king of the Shaw tennis courts.

Pat Smith received his second letter for tennis; while Ed Brown, Dick Johnson, Alvin Legonsky, Allan Levine, Kirk Reid, Fred Smith, Ralph Wuest, and Bill Zimmerman received numerals for the first time.

PUTTING, driving, and walking meant golf and not transportation to the four Shaw boys representing the school in that sport last spring. Coach J. L. Snively sent Andy Larned, Dave Larsen, Bill Morison and Chuck Regan to the annual Lake Erie league golf tournament as the Cardinal entries, and they came back with a third place tie to better their last place rating of the previous year. Shaker won the meet, with Elyria coming in second.

Most of their practice came at either Highland or University school golf courses, but a special room in the basement of the old building was often put to use. Although the league meet was their only official one throughout the year, they had several practice sessions with such schools as Heights and Shaker.

SHAW'S "nine-men-on-a-diamond" won 11 of their 16 games last spring, but lost the city championship to West Tech after spoiling their chances of going to Columbus by losing to Holy Name's slugging combination (the score was 20-10 in the semi-finals).

Led by the booming bats of Mulligan, Watt, Pojak, Hart, and Gibbons, and paced by the pitching arms of Baxter, Russ, and Bradford, the Cardinals had one of their finest seasons. Dave Baxter, a sophomore, led the hurling staff by winning six and losing three. Al Russ and Bob Bradford lost one game each, and won three and two battles respectively. Bob Mulligan compiled a batting average of .435 to lead the team's hitters.

Eleven members of this squad graduated, leaving Coach Roy Wisecup with a nucleus of 10 fairly experienced men to face the 1943 season.

FLIPS and somersaults, the ghost yell and the "ax," weary bones, hoarse voices, and dishevelled looks . . . that's what cheerleaders are made of.

Their enthusiasm, their over-abundance of energy and spirit . . . these they transferred to spectators at football games and rallies in all sorts of weather, under any conditions.

THEN there was that memorable rally after the Heights game, and those skits, corny but laughable, and pep talks and songs and a spirited band—these were the products of all the tortured brains behind the Boosters committee. They planned four rallies this year to put the student body squarely behind their team when they were most needed.

ATHLETIC COUNCIL . . . rules girls sports

"THAT each member of the Athletic council would do every possible thing to help make every Shaw girl sportsminded and a good athlete" . . . after making this a pledge at the beginning of the year, the Girl's Athletic council did all in its power to fulfill it.

In charge of volley ball were Barbara Bell and her assistant, Jean Hardy; Basketball was headed by Vivian Holdt and Janice Lloyd; while Jean Goncher and Nita Fox, later replaced by Jane Nelson, supervised baseball. Governing the mermaids were Sue Lewis and Sally Hammond; and Jolene McKenzie and Jean Hoefler ran life-saving classes. Walking at the head of the Hiking club was Angie Cusumano.

Miss Betty French replaced Miss Alice Juringus as athletic instructor.

BOUNCING on horseback through winter and spring gets to be a rather stiff business, but the girls of Shaw's Riding club lived through it and loved it and even came back for more.

Headed by G. A. C. members Eleanor Jones and her assistant, Esther Hisey, they met on Wednesdays and Fridays at a local riding academy outside of Cleveland. Here they used an indoor rink during the winter and bridle paths in warmer weather. Riding trails were used only by those girls who were adept enough to do so. Their capability of riding the privately owned horses was decided by the instructors.

Last winter their main activity was taking part in a horse show at the academy. The girls used their own cars to get to and from the club.

MERMAIDS DELUXE . . .

. . . Tarpon and

TO BE a member of Tarpon, the swimming club of G. A. A., a girl had to pass special tests and be voted in by the members themselves. On these elimination trials, taking place twice a year, an applicant had to get at least 16 points before her name could even be considered.

The club, composed of girls from all grades except 10B, met at the pool every other Tuesday. They planned parties or swam for their own personal enjoyment.

Their project for the year was a water carnival, put on for the first time in the history of the club. Besides this, they held another splash party with a group of girls from Heights high school in our pool, and conducted the girls' interclass swimming meet.

THE Aqua-Dux girls, those of the red bathing suits, were of great help to Miss Betty French in conducting swimming classes this year. These classes were divided into squads according to swimming ability, with one leader placed at the head of each group.

As their name implies, the girls were picked for their ability, so that they might help the members of the class to improve their strokes, dives, and kicks, acting as assistant instructors, and doing a job that might have been impossible without their assistance.

The classes benefited from individual instruction in this way, as it was easier for them to learn when they were in small groups. There were four or five of these groups in each swimming period.

Lifesavers . . .

. . . SHAW'S TOP GIRL SWIMMERS

TEN senior and 11 junior girls passed the endurance tests that enabled them to become members of the life-saving class this year. To do so, they had to be advanced swimmers, able to swim most of the necessary strokes, perform surface dives, swim under water and have general proficiency in distance swimming.

During class they learned certain holds to use in life-saving and practiced them on each other. Artificial respiration was taught to them, and they applied it, again using their classmates as victims. On top of that there were weekly examinations to pass.

The class met every Thursday after school under Miss Betty French's direction. Those who completed all the tests received their life-saving emblems at the end of the year.

BECAUSE individual girls can have a closer check on their classmates than a teacher possibly can in a large gym class, the Girls' Leaders club was formed.

Miss Betty French, girls' physical education director, stated that by taking attendance, helping their own squads in various activities, and sometimes taking over the whole class, the girls received important training in leadership. Throughout the year they introduced major sports—such as volleyball, basketball, and baseball—to their squads, who usually formed teams with a leader as captain.

They had to be able to participate in any of the recreational activities, such as, ping pong and badminton, or show the squads how to square dance, and how to get through the girls' commando course with ease.

They formed their own teams, elected their captains and began playing on various Tuesdays and Thursdays from September through January. Round robin was used throughout the season so that everyone had a chance to play.

The closing event was the ever-favorite Yale-Harvard game played by the all-stars who were selected by the captains of previously participating teams.

In this sport, headed by Barbara Bell and Jean Hardy, each player marked up 75 points toward her "S" letter.

BASKETBALL . . .

. . . highlighted by "Army-Navy" Contest

BASKETBALL season was short and fast this year. The after-school games were played in a period of three months, instead of the customary five. The reason for such a short season was that Vivian Holdt, G. A. C. member in charge of basketball; and Janice Lloyd, her assistant, had the 14 teams playing in a double elimination contest.

Climaxing the season was the annual "Army-Navy" game, which Navy took for the fifth consecutive year 24-18. Rheva Byrum was high scorer for Navy with 13 points to her credit, while Betty Faulds tallied nine points for the Army.

Girls' basketball, differing from boys' in many respects, was peculiar and exciting enough to arouse the crowd attending the game.

MODERN DANCING

They called it distortion and contortion. They bent and wove their bodies in graceful unison. They seemed to flow into impossible beautiful movements. They wrote the living panorama that was modern dancing. . .

Headed by Mary Rutland and her assistant, Jeanne Lewis, the members of G. A. A. who formed this year's Modern Dance club set something like the above words as their goal and did their best to equal it. They met on Mondays after school in the girls' gym and went through a process that had them well-stiffened by Tuesday morning, and full of abnormal groans, and hidden aches and pains.

But the fruit of their work, the grace and skill of it were presented both at a G. A. A. assembly and at open house; and later on they performed at a P.-T.A. meeting. They bought new suits this year for the seniors and did most of their creative dancing to Ravel's "Bolero," Tschaikowsky's Piano Concerto, and "Black Magic."

IF you were a member of G. A. A., if you were a member of many teams, if you missed no more than two games in each season, if you received a total of 350 points for all this, then you got a small S letter this year—if you were a girl. And if it happened to be the second year you had done this, only this time you made an additional 350 points for a total of 700, then you got a large S letter—and you had to work for it!

Such sports as volleyball, basketball, and modern dancing were worth 75 points apiece to the participants, but baseball netted them only 50 points. Acting as an official, swimming, and horseback riding were some of the other sources for points. Only eight girls received their large S letters this year; while 17 earned their small S awards.

TWICE a month on Friday and Monday afternoons, room nine, birthplace of the Shaw Observer, harbored varying amounts of din and commotion: the bored voices of proof-readers, the efficient clack of typewriters, the impatient scratching of copyreaders' pencils, and the hurried consultations of editors as an anxious staff struggled to bring into being a graphic and vivid composite of school life.

Beginning the year with a shake-up of editorial positions, which subdivided the editorial board into three positions—executive editor, managing editor, and editor-in-chief—the enlarged staff supported numerous student activities, seasonal sports, and patriotic campaigns. The year's highlight was the election of a Victory queen, sponsored by the paper through the sale of war stamps and bonds to the students.

The war brought about some other changes. "Footprints," the alumni column, became filled with news of students in the armed forces; and columns on rumors and wartime fashions were added.

TWO representatives from every homeroom were elected to carry on work for Junior Red Cross this year, but every student in the school became a member. This was accomplished through the annual Red Cross drive, to which students contributed 100 per cent, automatically becoming members.

At the beginning of the campaign a huge white cross was placed in the main hall, with spaces designated for each homeroom. As the homerooms became 100 per cent contributors, their numbers were placed on this cross on red cards in the proper places. By the end of the campaign the white cross had been changed to a red one.

This group also was responsible for filling Christmas boxes for the Marine hospital, following a custom of long standing. This was done in the homerooms, and then the boxes were placed under the school Christmas tree before being delivered.

IN SHAW the Spanish clubs (yes, it's plural as there are five of them) met in each of Miss Alice Zuck's classes once a month. An entirely new set of officers was elected each semester. The vice-president acting as chairman of the program committee, planned entertainment for every meeting. Sometimes it was a spelling bee, or perhaps it was a roll call to be answered with Spanish proverbs.

Selling war stamps and bonds was the biggest project of the year. The junior A classes took complete charge of the sale for as long as two weeks for each class. During the first semester they sold doughnuts after school, breaking all previous doughnut-selling records.

A step in the direction of victory was taken when the club sponsored a Variety show at which war stamps were sold to the audience, with President Fred Frayer as master of ceremonies.

SHAW'S largest all-boy organization—the Senior Hi-Y—spent another year packed with activity and interest. Composed of nine chapters with approximately twenty members apiece, the club met on Monday nights at the Y house to plan everything from the devilry of the Hi-Y show to the solemnity of their formal initiations.

Their sports leagues began in the fall with football, and carried through winter and spring in the form of basketball and baseball leagues and a swimming meet. In the social field they put on a recording dance, held their annual banquet with Senior Friendship and also their annual Sweethearts' night. In addition, each of the smaller chapters held individual parties throughout the year.

At mid-year a new membership system, based on the pro-football draft, was installed.

NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY . . .

NATIONAL Honor society held one of the most important duties of the school in their hand this year, that of taking over and supervising the selling of war bonds and stamps. Obtaining these from the government, they distributed the privilege of selling them to different organizations. Almost every club took over the sale for two weeks with the Observer in the lead, selling a total of $4,343.95 worth during its Victory Queen campaign week.

This year the club was enlarged by 28 initiates as compared with last year's 22. Those in the upper fourth of the senior and junior A class who had the required degrees of character, leadership, scholarship, and service made the grade. Known only to the faculty committee were these appointments until read at the Honor day assemblies in January and May.

The club had a new adviser this year in H. L. Naragon, who replaced Miss Jones.

WORKING silently but busily throughout the year a slightly enlarged Shuttle staff strived to combine the varied notes of school life into one grand symphony—picture of a school at war.

Preparation for the 1943 Shuttle began the preceding May, when Editor Harry Campbell planned the year's work, and with Bert Boyle, his assistant, chose the staff. Most important addition was the position of copy editor, filled by Mark Spilka, to aid the efficiency of the staff.

Climax of the activities was, of course, the publication of this yearbook, followed by the annual Shuttle signing party in the boys' gym.

VARSITY "S" . . .

. . . symbolizes Shaw's fighting spirit

SPONSORED by Marty Loftus and headed by Jack Shaw, the Varsity S club again symbolized the best in Shaw athletics for 1942 and '43. Composed entirely of boys who had previously won a letter in one of the school's many interscholastic sports, the club met somewhat sporadically during the year but accomplished their usual work.

Members again sponsored the election of a football queen and her two attendants, who were presented to the school at a rally, and then to the community at the Lorain game. They held a night recording dance in the boys' gym early in the year, and planned a party later on in the spring.

But their most important function was to conduct the election of the most valuable school athlete for the year, to be named in the final Honor day assembly of this year.

HISTORY CLUB . . .

. . . globes and maps, dances and doughnuts

"HISTORY club tonight!" That's the theme song of many students every other Tuesday when they gather in room eight for a lively session of arguing and planning in one of the most timely organizations at school.

Beginning the semester with a new sponsor, Mrs. Florence Thomas, the club had one of its most successful years. Many of the programs featured outside speakers—including a lady missionary to China, formerly of East Cleveland—who spoke on current topics and their part in world history. The members also held discussions on present-day affairs.

Their other activities included several parties and a doughnut sale.

THE BAND . . .

EVERY night for 10 weeks in the fall, one hundred-odd members of the Marching band could be heard drilling, playing, and yelling down at the football field. Performing during halves at all but two of the Shaw football games, as well as four college games and innumerable patriotic rallies, the band played before more than 123,000 people in its autumn season alone.

Highlight of the winter season was the sixth annual winter concert the last week in January, which featured three soloists. The following month at the customary band banquet, members were awarded letters and pins signifying two and three years service respectively.

In May the climax of a most successful year was reached in the annual spring concert at Kirk junior high school.

THE ORCHESTRA . . .

. . . woodwinds and brasses—hard work and practice

WITH the addition of three first violin players, Shaw's orchestra took a decided turn for the better this year.

This 35-piece organization was heard by many East Clevelanders during 1942 and '43, under the direction of Milton G. Niergarth. They gained prominence by playing at commencements, class days, civilian defense programs, church socials, the Mid-year play, and various other events.

Mr. Niergarth stated, "Our orchestra was the best this year it has ever been."

String ensembles met daily second period, and special rehearsals were held with the woodwinds and brass. They climaxed their season at the annual May concert, held jointly with the band and choir.

A CAPPELLA CHOIR . . .

UNDER their new director Edgar E. Vance, the Shaw high choir underwent one of its busiest, most successful seasons, despite the wartime restrictions on transportation facilities. The principal function of the a Cappella group this year was to strengthen the morale of the people at home. The past year's calendar was filled with engagements at war plants and factories along with the choir's usual duties at Yule Tide, Thanksgiving, Easter and the other holidays.

Paramount, however, in the choir's schedule was their participation in the annual Spring Concert in May, when they, along with the band and orchestra, presented to the public three hours of modern and classical music. They made their final appearance of the school year when they saluted the seniors at graduation exercises.

"COME on now, boys, sing!"

And sing they did each Wednesday after school as the Boys' Glee club met in B-11 under their new director, Edgar E. Vance.

Mr. Vance, replacing former maestro Jacob Hines who left Shaw to take an important position in a war plant, called a meeting earlier in the year for those boys interested in singing. It brought results with members singing for pleasure or purpose, for themselves or some local organization such as the Lions club of East Cleveland.

Plenty of fun combined with a great deal of hard work again made them an active and popular school organization.

Sirens of Song . . .

. . . GIRLS' GLEE CLUB

VERY important in the world today is the fact that people can still go about singing. The Girls' Glee club, under the direction of Edgar E. Vance, kept that fact alive and flourishing at Shaw by holding singing sessions every Monday in room B-11.

Here they warbled ballads, patriotic numbers, folk and love songs, and specialized in novelty and art music, such as "The Cuckoo Clock" by Walter Aschenbrenner. Their favorites were "Little West Wind" by Richard Harding, and "Ho-La-Li", a folk tune by Morton Lovaass.

A candied apple sale and later a doughnut sale were sponsored by this club, the profits being used to provide the bronze, silver, and gold pins which were awarded each semester to the girls attending every meeting.

RATHER new to Shaw, but nevertheless very popular, was the Cinema club, whose members took it upon themselves to appreciate films which most people take for granted. They studied not only the plot of the movie, but stars, directors, and technicalities of production.

For entertainment during their meetings members brought in various speakers to tell them more about the art of making moving pictures. One of their favorite speakers Mrs. Lillian Flahaven, review chairman of the Cleveland Cinema club, told them how studios in Hollywood worked almost without profit to make films concerning the war effort for the government. She also recommended some of the better war movies.

JR. FOREIGN AFFAIRS COUNCIL...

... studies world affairs

NEW to Shaw this year was the Junior Council on World Affairs. Patterned after the National Council on World Affairs, its purpose is to interest high school students in international problems. Formerly known as Junior Foreign Affairs council, the name was altered when that of the older organization was changed.

Sponsored by Miss Lois Crank, this club met with the debaters. Latin America was under discussion for many meetings in preparation for the Latin American Institute at Western Reserve University late in March.

The first of the present 30 members were recommended by social science and language teachers. They were approved by the National council. Then the Debate club recommended its most active members, who had to be approved by the National Forensic league before they were accepted into the council.

DEBATE CLUB . . .

. . . they of the silver tongue

SINCE transportational difficulties put a stop to many oratorical contests with other schools, Shaw's debate fanciers upheld their freedom of discussion with special meetings on Wednesday afternoons in room 39.

Such topics as "Military Strategy of the Present War," "Building Morale Through Speech," and "Should India Be Given Freedom" were under discussion there, with several meetings often being devoted to one particular subject. At other times, prepared talks were given by individual members.

In May decision debates were held with a few neighboring schools. As in previous years, medals were given this spring by the American Legion to the best extemporaneous speakers. "Racial Equality—A Problem of Peace" was John Brainaird's subject at the Lake Erie league extemporaneous contest.

Miss Lois Crank again sponsored the organization.

GIRAFFE, black Petunia and white Sylvia dolls, in addition to scrap books, were supplied to all under 21 years of age at the Sunny Acres and Rainbow hospitals by the Senior Friendship girls under Miss Marie Kurtz's sponsorship.

Flying fingers knitted both booties and beanies; while every resident of McGregor home was supplied with a needle case during the Valentine season. Several successful doughnut sales were held, and a Sophomore Friendship tea was sponsored by the club.

Two successful annual events were the combined Hi-Y and Friendship banquet, and the Recognition service, at which a regular Senior Friendship choir sang for the first time.

Busy is an understatement where this club is concerned. Among other activities they colored hollow eggs at Easter and took a trip around the world, visiting different countries each meeting through the medium of speakers and movies.

. . . embody idealism

JUST as the name implies, the Sophomore Friendship club is an organization to promote sociability among 10th grade girls. A dance was held for some 120 members to help them become better acquainted. A successful doughnut sale was the means of increasing the club treasury.

By way of service these girls dressed dolls for the Associated Charities at Christmas time, made newspaper wastebaskets for hospitals and participated in the war stamp drive.

They again took part in the recognition service for the Friendship clubs.

Always interested in manners and etiquette, these younger girls listened attentively to a speaker on that subject, and to various other lecturers throughout the year.

Governed by a cabinet of officers and committee heads, the club provided sophomore girls with a chance to participate in varied group activities.

ART CLUB . . .

. . . climaxes year with May Show

FOR the past 22 years, the May show has been the outstanding event for Art club members; this year was no exception.

During the exhibit, pictures in oils, metal work, jewelry, clay models, and camouflage art could be viewed in the main hall showcases. Under the direction of Miss Marian Bright, all art students did some work for it, and $25 was divided among the winners in each division.

Making brilliant ceramic pins and American Legion poppy posters occupied much of their time. When asked by the Red Cross, they gladly designed various kinds of invitations and menus for the boys overseas.

Their meetings were confined strictly to business discussions, which followed their main purpose—to serve the school in any way that art work is needed.

"I'll tell you all about it at Whirlo meeting tonight."

"All right, but don't forget it, sport."

You have probably heard those words somewhere in the halls and classrooms of Shaw, for every other Tuesday members of the Whirlo club met to plan fun for their weekly skating party, held each Friday at a well-known roller skating rink.

The party given by the Cleveland Whirlo organization this year was successful. Shaw's own club, sponsored by Miss Rachael Wolf, boasted of a banquet held at John Hay high school at which emblems and pins were awarded to those members who had earned the required number of points.

An annual initiation was held for those who wished to join the group, but prospective members needed no requirements except a sense of humor, plenty of vitality, and an interest in skating.

MOVIE CREW . . .

AT every meeting, party, or any type of production at Shaw high during both the school term and the summer, some member of the stage crew was on the job. They were the boys behind the bright lights, the ones who made sure that those lights were on or off at the right moment. They set up and tore down stage props, or helped with sound effects, and tended to all the odd details that lay behind each program.

TO promote an interest in hygiene, the Health club met every other Thursday in room 218 under Miss Nina McWebb's supervision. Such subjects as the care of the skin, the correct use of make-up, corrective exercises for defective posture, and care of the feet were discussed at the meetings, special speakers being obtained to lead discussions and supply facts.

The club sent scrap books to Rainbow hospital and sponsored a demonstration on training war dogs at an assembly for the student body, some of these dogs being shown on the stage to give students an idea of what they can do. At the close of each semester a party was held for the members.

STAMP CLUB . . .

STAMPS! Big stamps, little stamps, old and new stamps, colorful ones and ordinary ones were sold at the Stamp club auction this year. Members brought to school stamps not needed or ones of special interest and sold them in lots of 20 and 30.

Every two weeks about 15 of these enthusiasts met to discuss and trade the little objects closest to their hearts. If a new stamp was brought to be viewed by the club, its owner gave the history and price of it.

Original posters in the main hall showcase were made by the philatelists to show stamps of different countries. One of the posters was the insignia of Russia worked out in stamps.

To carry out the stamp idea, members played "stampo" as an adaptation of "bingo."

Rifle Club . . .

RANKING as one of Shaw's most practical wartime organizations, the Rifle club continued to hold matches and practice shooting in a year when both ammunition and guns were being used for a similar, if more deadly, purpose.

Its members met on Wednesdays after school at the Kirk junior high school range and practiced with Springfields furnished by the government. Their bullets were also bought from that source and necessarily rationed.

For the first time in over three years the club dropped a competitive match, but only one, easily winning their other postal matches. They were beaten by South high's sharpshooters, but defeated such organizations as the East Cleveland Rod and Gun club and a Youngstown high school group.
